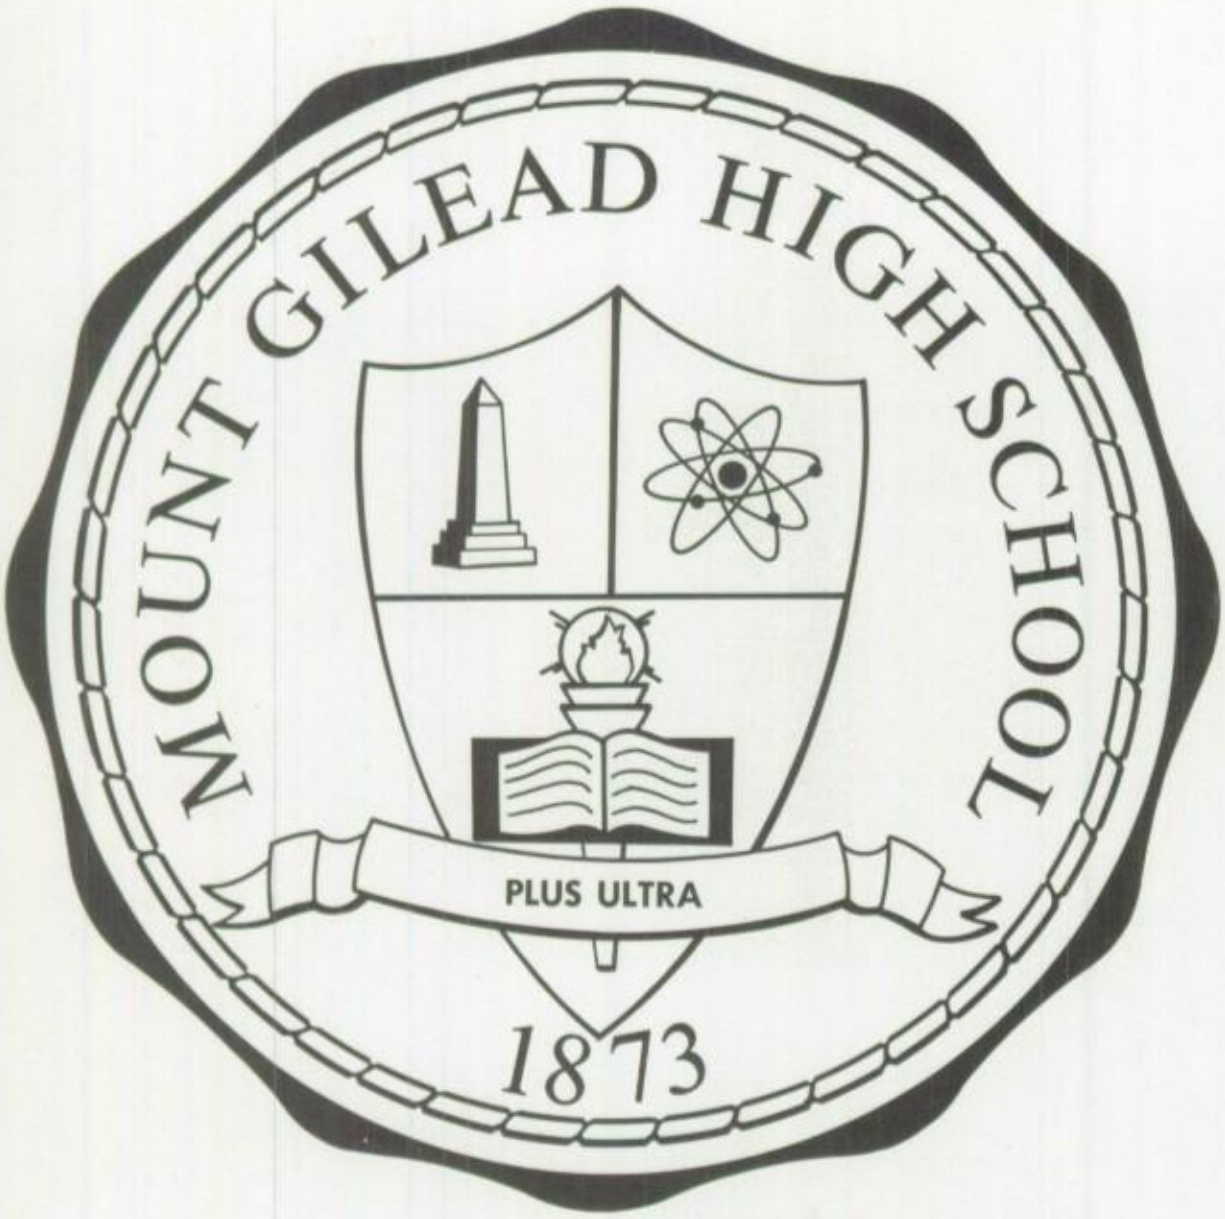
Mount Gilead High School
Mount Gilead, Ohio
Volume LII



Foreword

The classrooms, the hallways, the offices — the school. More than brick and mortar, the school is the students. If there be students, there must be teachers, and both require administrators.

Yet, as important as the buildings and personnel, is the spirit, symbolized by a seal, newly created; a motto, "This far and farther."

Mount Gilead is made up of traditions of the past, knowledge of the present and potential of the future. Ninety-four years of progress to this end, this beginning.

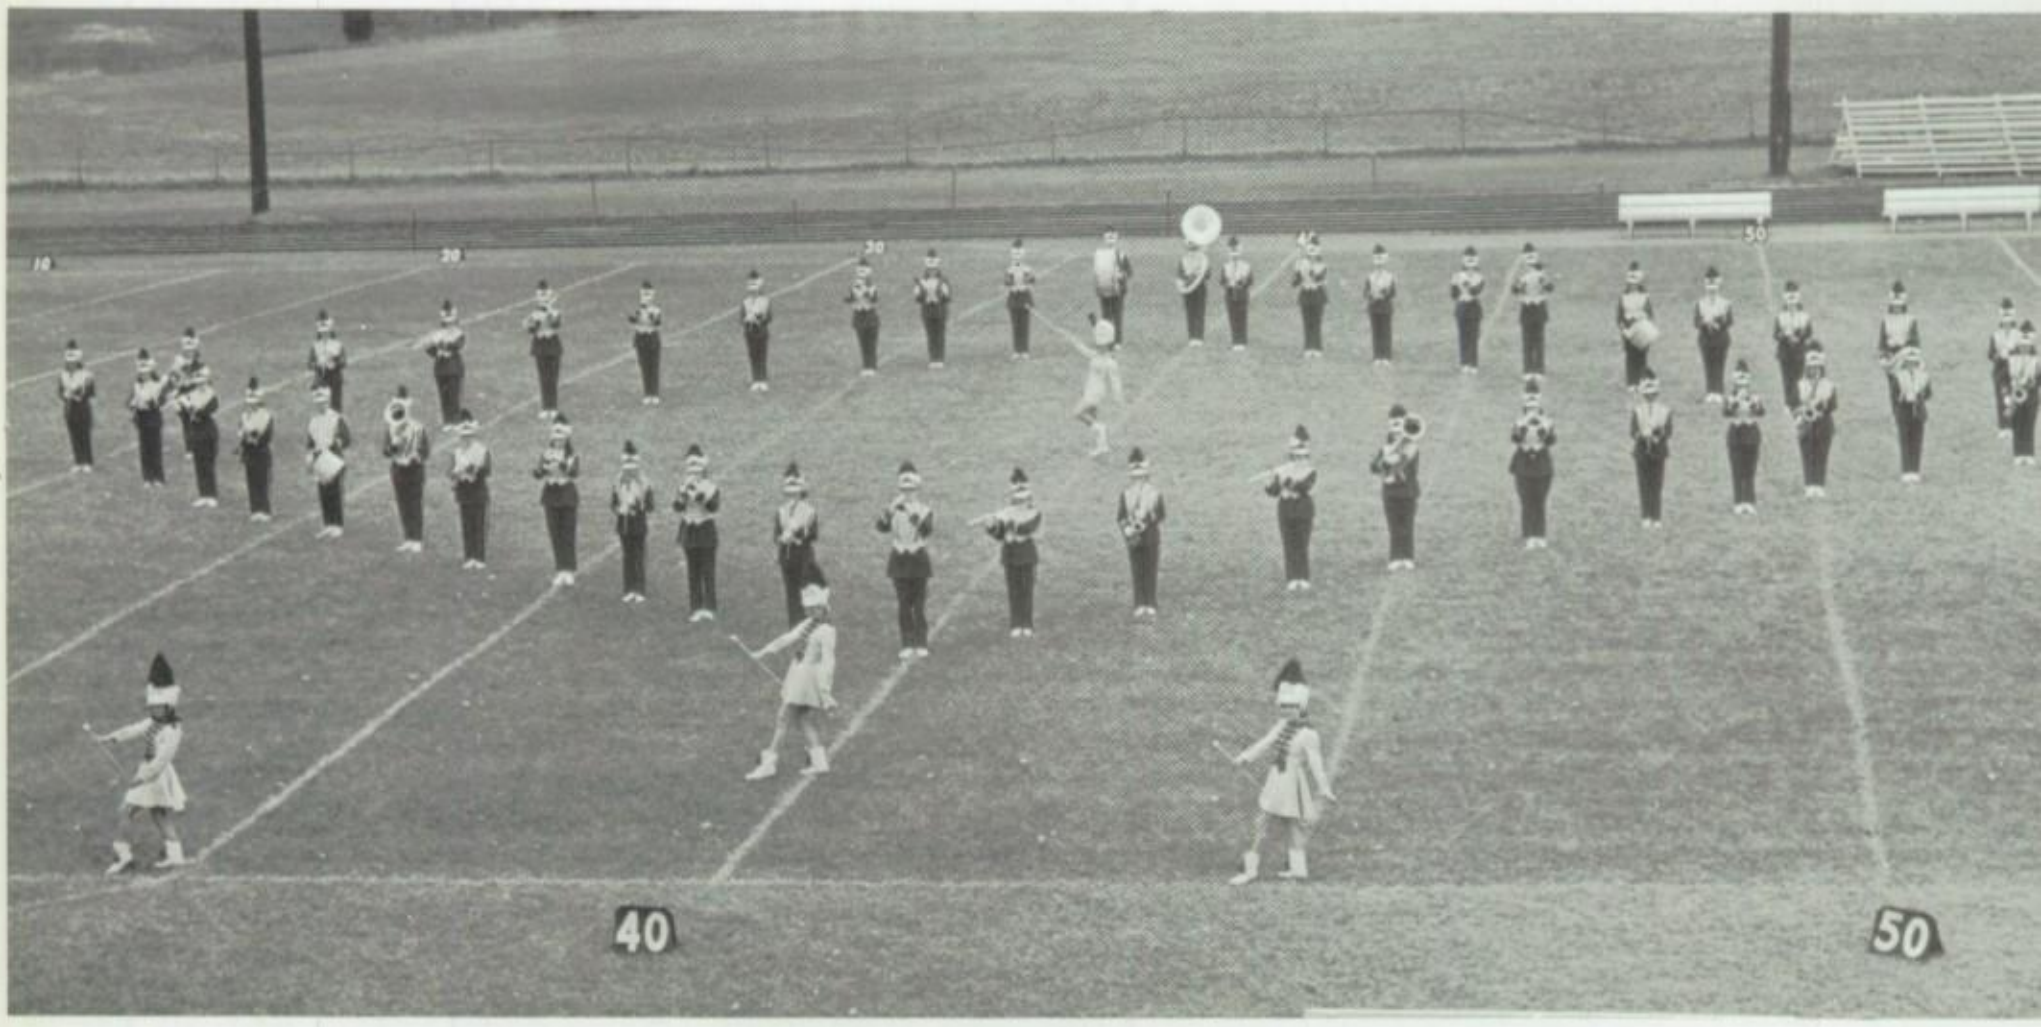
Spirit and pride describe the MGHS Indian Band.



Marching Band—"Blow on those horns. Bring those knees up. Point your toes. Stand up straight and quit looking around. This doesn't even look like a marching band!" How many thousands of times do the band members hear these words at each practice? Many times they think they aren't going to live through the long weeks of practice. But all the work becomes worthwhile when they do their best on Friday night and know they have done a good job.

Initiate Kathy Smith lights her candle, representative of the torch of knowledge, symbolic in the F.T.A. program.

Giving high school students a look at teaching as a career is the major objective of the Future Teachers of America. Observation of teachers in action helps each F.T.A. member decide if he is suited to be a teacher. Each year the F.T.A. visits a college in addition to holding a county rally. The high point of the year is the awarding of a scholarship to the most outstanding club member.

The objective of the F.F.A. is to give members an opportunity to develop leadership. Serving as officers and committee chairmen, the members learn good parliamentary procedure. The club stresses participation in activities such as community service, public speaking, and cooperation. These experiences will encourage the members to actively participate in community organizations after they have completed school. It was a year of learning for members of the "Arrowtales" staff. Trying to build a newspaper from scratch, without the help of a journalism department, is a task which requires the help of a journalist steeped in the basic background of journalism. This background must be created by experience, education, and study. The members of the staff are dedicated to these precepts.

The Mizpah staff works together to preserve the events of a memorable year. Pressing to meet deadlines, staff members take pictures, sell advertisements, write copy, make lay-outs, and take more pictures. Kris Wood demonstrates the correct procedure for flipping.

George Conant strolls around the campus showing off his new gym uniform.

Diana Kuenzer flashes a big smile as she leaves the lecture room.

There are no smiles or happy faces among these sophomores as they participate in Mr. White's famed biology practical.

The 1967 Mizpah Staff wishes to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to all those persons, businesses, and organizations who helped in any way to make this edition a success.
